Committee Descriptions

UNSC

In MUN, delegates in the UNSC debate pressing global issues like conflicts, sanctions, peacekeeping missions, and counter-terrorism. They aim to pass resolutions through consensus or voting, often navigating complex geopolitical dynamics and negotiations, especially due to the veto power held by permanent members.

UNHRC

In MUN, delegates in the UNHRC debate topics such as violations of human rights, discrimination, refugee crises, and freedom of speech. Their goal is to draft and pass resolutions that propose solutions to these issues, often balancing the need for human rights protection with the political and cultural sensitivities of different nations. The discussions emphasize diplomacy, compromise, and international cooperation.

DISEC

In MUN, delegates in DISEC debate critical international security threats like nuclear non-proliferation, arms control, cyber warfare, and the illicit weapons trade. They aim to pass resolutions through consensus or voting, often navigating complex regional alliances and disarmament treaties, operating under a one-country-one-vote system where every member state has an equal voice without any veto power.

UNW

In this committee, delegates work to draft resolutions aimed at advancing gender equality, combating discrimination, and promoting women's participation in political and social spheres. The discussions emphasize international cooperation and policy recommendations to improve the status of women globally.

PNA

In Model United Nations (MUN) or similar simulations, discussions involving the Pakistan National Assembly may focus on Pakistan's domestic policies, political structure, legislative processes, or debates on issues like security, economic development, and social reforms.
